ICERT identifies, analyze sand documents all possibilities for conflict of interests that emerge from certification processes including any conflicts that emerge from its relations. Presence of relations does not necessarily position the ICERT in a situation of conflict of interests. If some relations create impartiality threats, ICERT documents and eliminates or decreases such threats. This information is presented to the Advisory Board members. It is necessary to cover all possible conflict of interests' sources that are identified regardless of their origin. ICERT requires from all employees, internal and external, to comply with impartiality rules as well as reveal any situation known to them that may present them or ICERT with a conflict of interests. ICERT shall use this information as input in identifying threats to impartiality raised by the activities of such personnel or by the organization that employ them. Such personnel, internal or external shall not be used unless they demonstrate that there is no conflict of interest. ICERT shall not undertake any action that threatens the impartiality and/or are potential conflict of interests.

When certain relations create unacceptable impartiality threat, then the certification shall not be conducted. ICERT shall not certify another certification body for its activities related to management system certification.
